To strengthen our team, we have an immediate-start vacancy for a

Sales Manager (m/f) for northern Italy

Your job description:

From your home office in Italy, preferably in the north of the country, you will be responsible for consistently strengthening our market position in northern Italy. Your tasks will include acquiring new customers and building on existing customer relationships. You will also be responsible for the entire sales process.

Your qualifications:

As a native speaker, you have a perfect command of Italian. You have also completed a degree in business or another relevant subject and have experience in selling investment goods. You are characterised by your independent manner of working, reliability, sociable nature and ability to inspire and impress customers. Your profile is rounded off by a willingness to travel and a sound knowledge of English.

We are offering you the opportunity to have an active share in our young company's success story. In our company, you will get the chance to take on a role with opportunities for development and long-term prospects within an innovative environment.

We look forward to receiving all your application documents including your desired salary by post or e-mail.
